

The adaptation of the Dolphin

The dolphin has three structural adaptations to live in the sea. The first is its nose : to breathe the dolphin has a hole above its head called the event . The second adaptation : the fins. Its fins are sharp. The dolphin uses them to swim. The third adaptation is the skin. Its skin is soft and smooth. The dolphin uses it to slide easily in water.